

Tier 1

Pete Davidson

Works / lives in Hackney wick

🏡🌱🌱🌱🌱 Owner of Grow

-Community activist
-Interested in growing crops

Suggestions
-Communal activities
-Food growing
-Offer space for those with no place

"The way to move forward is to separate the 'money people' from the ideas of development... Let the community organise and come together to own the area. If people really want to live here, who are rich and thing it is funky, maybe they should pay for the community through higher rents and put back into community, and build social housing... In that way communities could probably thrive."

Tier 2

Emma Whitt

Works in Hackney wick

Alfred Le Roy

-Business only
-Knowledge of hempcrete

Suggestions
-Communal green spaces
-Use of natural materials: hemp
-Provide for the community, for all as one

"Jeremy Corbyn says: "It's for the many, not few." I don't understand why people don't understand that it just leads to the loneliness and more mental problems, more darkness where you need more light, you need more literal light. The blocks are blocking the sunlight out. Bob Dylan sings about this... buildings blocking out sun."

Tier 3

Sam and Jef

Work in Hackney Wick, Tower Hamlets

🏡🌱🌱🌱🌱 Builder

-Community activist
-Interested in growing crops

Suggestions
-Service spaces
-Historical industrial area
-Green spaces

"I've seen it from where it was pure industrial to when it became the artists' hangout, cheap workshops, to artists no longer being able to afford it. See Shoreditch. Poor place, no one lived there, everyone moved in, all the artists moved in, painted on the walls, made it look cool, run a few coffee shops and bars and all of a sudden it is a desirable place to live. All the developers move in, all the artists move out and then they cannot afford it."

Tier 4

Bradley

Visiting Hackney wick

🏡🌱🌱🌱🌱 Artist

-Visitor
-Artist

Suggestions
-Cafe
-Communal areas
-Places to enjoy the areas views

"There does seem to be awareness around not having that overbalance that is already here... If you just wack a big development somewhere that hasn't been impacted, I can see that people are trying sort of work with that and not just..."

