OPINIONS

"The way to move forward is to separate the 'money people' from the ideas of development... Let the community organise and come together to own the area. If people really want to live here, who are rich and thing it is funky, maybe they should pay for the community through higher rents and put back into community, and build social housing... In that way communities could probably thrive."

OPINIONS

"Jeremy Corbyn says: 'It's for the many, not few.' I don't understand why people don't understand that it just leads to the loneliness and more mental problems, more darkness where you need more light, you need more literal light. The blocks are blocking the sunlight out. Bob Dylan sings about this... buildings blocking out sun."

OPINIONS

"It used to be good around here but now it is all going to st. [There were] loads of parties, loads of artists throughout here. It was largest concentration of artists anywhere in the Europe and loads of schools but they torn it down. A lot of those warehouses got sold up cheap and they decided to build... Money talks and money has moved in."
